

Heal Collective Trauma & Embody Anti-Racism

Join us for an amazing learning journey doing the deep work of becoming anti-racist in a racist world.

Given the global awakening around racial oppression and injustice after the deaths of Breonna Taylor, Ahmaud Arbery and George Floyd, many leaders and organizations are asking:

- » What can we do?
- » How can we enact real and lasting change?

We need to examine racism from three vantage points:

- » The Personal
- » The Interpersonal
- » The Structural

and address racism as the historical, vicarious, institutional and collective trauma that it is.

"People are aware that they cannot continue in the same old way, but are immobilized because they cannot imagine an alternative. We need a vision that recognizes that we are at one of the great turning points in human history when the survival of our planet and the restoration of our humanity require a great sea change in our ecological, economic, political and spiritual values."

- Grace Lee Boggs, Civil Rights Activist

Like rings on trees, we carry the history of separation, alienation and injustice in our bodies. Through our bodies, we unwind the old and build capacity to remember the truth of the interdependent and interwoven nature of all of life.
